Bedrijfsbeschrijving

Exam trainer is an A.I. based peer-2-peer platform to help students create high-quality practice exams for their fellow students so that exam results will improve for everyone. Many students experience a lot of stress and anxiety when preparing for and taking exams, causing them to significantly under perform. We are going to fix this by turning failure for exams into successful exams!

The Exam Trainer system is operational and some small pilots are currently being implemented in practice with students of several universities. Students are responding very enthusiastically and are using the app for multiple exams. Students are responding very enthusiastically and are using the app for multiple exams. Students are responding very enthusiastically and are using the app for multiple exams. We are also getting support from teachers who endorse the added value. In addition, we have some requests from companies to implement the Exam Trainer for their learning environments as well.

Users can use the Exam Trainer platform to generate learning packages, publish them and make them available to end users in multiple languages via an app.

The Exam Trainer is being developed by a small and close development team that has been working together for over 15 years on various complex IT systems including artificial intelligence products & services. The dev team is extended by educational and media consultants. This combination provides the necessary experience and knowledge in the areas of education & didactics, examination & testing and user-friendly and qualitative software system design.

To realize our growth ambitions, we are looking for investors who want to democratize exam development so that everyone can generate good practice exams.

Business Model

We currently offer a "pay-per-use" option. We want to expand this with a subscription model.

USP's

What makes us unique is that we make the process of creating exams about 90% automated and accessible to all. So anyone can create good practice exams without being an expert. The development team is highly experienced and has already worked together over the past 15 years on various complex software products.

The advisors have extensive experience in higher education. In leadership, administration, teaching, innovation & multimedia design and as students.
