Bedrijfsbeschrijving

This company is a Dutch software firm focused on predicting legal rulings, allowing lawyers and businesses to better assess their chances and receive strategic advice. The software, developed in-house by a small team of three, provides an innovative solution to the uncertainty of legal outcomes. Currently, a proof of concept is available, and further development of the product is underway.

The business model is license-based, with the software primarily offered through an online platform to law firms and large companies. Although revenue is still at €0, the company has gained traction with interest from potential clients. The next phase focuses on rapidly rolling out and scaling the product in the Dutch market.
